

What comes to mind when you hear the words "solicitors" or "law firm"?

You might think about legal knowledge and serving clients. You may even think about specific areas of the law e.g. conveyancing; family; wills; employment; agricultural, or corporate commercial and many others.

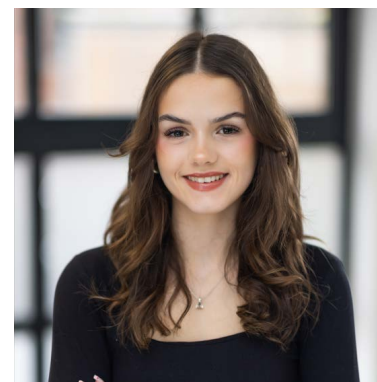

And you would not be wrong. But have you thought about legal practices are businesses in their own right? All of legal practitioners are supported in different ways in order to be available to our clients and provide them with legal services.

Chloe Greenslade
Receptionist Apprentice

We have a variety of roles within a law firm, from our receptionists and our support teams providing secretarial and administrative support; our finance team helping receive and pay monies; our marketing team helping to promote and grow our business.

Whether working with clients or serving our colleagues, there are opportunities to develop personally and professionally.
